VOL. VI. NO. 149 | FRESNO, CALIFORNIA, SATURDAY, JUNE 30, 1894 | PRICE—5 CENTS

BUSINESS PARALYZED

No Trains Running North or South.

ALL FREIGHT OFFICES CLOSED

Two Thousand Employes Walk Out of the Railroad Shops at Sacramento.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 29.—At the close of the second day of the great struggle between the American Railway Union and the Southern Pacific the strikers seem to have the upper hand. Traffic on this great railway system is paralyzed so far as the Pacific coast is concerned. No trains are running north or south, and from Ogden, Deming and El Paso west not a wheel is turning. Even the company's suburban trains out of San Francisco and Oakland are at a standstill. The ferry boats are running, it is true, but at Oakland and Alameda moles there are no connecting trains to bear suburban residents to their homes. Many thousands of people who do business in San Francisco and live on the opposite side of the bay are thus put to the greatest inconvenience.

Little effort has been made to move freight. Evidence that the company expects a protracted struggle was given this afternoon, when from the general offices of the Southern Pacific an order was issued closing all freight offices, and informing clerks of that department that their pay would cease until further notice. And it is this freight blockade that is most disastrous to the business interests of California. Heavy losses to fruit growing interests are inevitable, and many fruit growers and fruit dealers are threatened with bankruptcy. Hundreds of cars laden with perishable fruit are sidetracked. In northern California this is the fruit men's busiest shipping season, all peaches, apricots, cherries, plums and berries are fast ripening in every orchard. A blockade of only a few days will see fruit to the value of hundreds of thousands of dollars too ripe for shipment. All this will be a total loss to growers.

Tonight there seems little prospect that the blockade will be raised for at least several days. In the Oakland and Sacramento yards a few locomotive engineers have shown a disposition to stand by the company and take out trains, but notwithstanding this apparent willingness on the part of the engineers, no trains have been moved. The firemen, brakemen and switchmen, almost to a man, stand by the union, and so far have effectually blocked all traffic. The company's shops at many points have also shut down. The initiative was taken at Sacramento this morning, when 2000 men walked out.

This evening it is reported that the railway company's telegraph operators all along the coast have declared in favor of the union and that they are refusing to transmit railroad business over the wires.

Notwithstanding the apparent advantage of the American Railway Union, the general officials of the Southern Pacific declare that the success of the strike is only temporary and that the company is determined in its policy of resistance as expressed by President Huntington and General Manager Towne last night.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 29.—M. V. Stafford, general chairman of the Pacific division order railway conductors, and C. E. Swain, general chairman Pacific division of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, issued bulletins this afternoon deploring the strike on the Southern Pacific system and advising members of these orders to retain their positions and attend to their own duties regardless of the American Railway Union strike.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 29.—At United States headquarters here it was announced this evening that arrangements have been made to forward mails for Sacramento, Napa and Stockton on the river steamers. So far no steps have been taken to send mails to north and south coast points on ocean steamers.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 29.—The Chronicle says that a number of prominent business houses, including Holbrook, Merrill & Stetson, Clinton, Woorden & Co, and Spreckels Bros., will close up if the tie-up continues two days longer. The closing of the Spreckels' interests, including the sugar refinery, will result in the loss of employment to over 2000 men. Holbrook, Merrill & Stetson is one of the largest wholesale hardware firms on the Pacific Coast, and Woorden & Co., manufacturing pharmacists, also have large interests.

AT WEST OAKLAND.

Trains Ready to Start but no One to Take Them Out.

WEST OAKLAND, June 29.—At 5 p.m. the railway tie up is as tight as ever and the only trains running on this side of the bay are two locals. Deputy sheriffs are thick at all points, but there has been no disturbance of any kind. The railway yards are filled with trains made up ready to start, but there is no one to take them out. Railway officials are making no efforts to get out trains and seem to be waiting for something to turn up.

Late this afternoon Oakland lodge of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, comprising 115 conductors, brakemen, baggagemen and switchmen, held a meeting and decided not to join the strike.

Division Superintendent Wilder of the Southern Pacific said this evening that no attempt will be made to run regular passenger trains. The energies of the company are at present devoted to maintaining the suburban service.

WEST OAKLAND, Cal June 29.—At 9 o'clock tonight there is no change in the strike situation. No trains except Alameda, Berkeley and Oakland locals are running. Railway officials are concentrating their efforts to re-establish this suburban service and are making no move to run regular passenger trains.

A thousand strikers and as many sympathizers are congregated at the West Oakland yards, and are showing signs of boisterousness. On the last trip of the Oakland local train Engineer Jeffries was hooted at and stones were thrown at him. One arrest was made by the police. A secret meeting of the American Railway Union is in progress, also a meeting of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. These latter are expected to indorse the strike, if not to participate in it. It is stated that the railway telegraphers are expecting orders for them to go out.

WEST OAKLAND, June 29.—At 11 p.m. West Oakland was as orderly and quiet as any town in California. The crowds on the streets had gone home, and what promised early in the evening to be an ugly demonstration against Engineer Jeffries proved to be very mild. The crowd became tired of using bad language and throwing stones.

The engineers will indorse the strike, but will not strike themselves unless they find some grievance. They will refuse to work with scabs, and individually will help the American Railway Union all they can.

Division Superintendent Wilder tonight confessed that the outlook was very blue for the railroad, and said the company would probably not make much progress for the next two days. Citizens of West Oakland held an open air meeting tonight and indorsed the strike. Agitators from San Francisco were present and spoke. They counseled the strikers to commit no violence but to take care that no one hurt them.

GENERAL MANAGERS MEET.

They Decide to Pursue an Aggressive Policy.

CHICAGO, Ill., June 29.—A meeting of general managers of the Railroad association was held here today at which it was decided to pursue an aggressive policy. The officials said they had determined at the outset to fight the strike. All roads represented announced a determination to secure new men to replace the strikers. The new men will be employed under ample protection. The Rock Island road, about the only one in Chicago that has escaped thus far, will probably be tied up tomorrow. Orders to that effect have been issued by President Debs, who says as managers of roads are standing shoulder to shoulder the men must do likewise. Debs says there will be no more temporizing on the part of employes, but cautions workingmen will refrain from acts of violence.

Referring to Judge Caldwell's manifesto, Debs says the receiver's control over the Santa Fe is the same as the managers' power over any line, adding: "We realize the importance of avoiding trouble with the government, and have neither wish nor intention to hinder the carriage of mails. As to the railroad's intention to export men, all they can procure will only be a drop in the bucket. Too many skilled hands are out to fill their places so as to give them even half a chance to run trains."

Packers at the stock yards tried to induce the strikers to take eight train loads of beef through, as a refusal would throw thousands of men out of employment. The strikers refused and the trains returned to the packing houses. The packers are afraid to send perishable freight from the yards for fear it will be tied up and spoil. It is reported tonight that at the general manager conference plans were formulated for Debs' arrest on a charge of conspiracy.

QUIET AT LOS ANGELES.

Large Numbers Applying for Situations.

LOS ANGELES, June 29.—Nothing is moving on wheels in this city except trains on the terminal and Redondo railroads. All day yesterday and today large numbers of men have applied for positions, and signified their willingness to take out trains with or without Pullmans. United States District Judge Ross today issued instructions to the grand jury charging them to diligently inquire whether any laws of the United States have been violated by any person or persons by their refusal to handle trains on which the United States mails had been deposited.

SHOPS CLOSED.

The Union Feeding Five Familes at Red Bluff.

DUNSMUIR, June 29.—When the south bound Oregon train came down yesterday evening the Pullmans were cut out and trainmen offered to take the rest of them out. The rest of them was held here this morning. A special was made up, and all who wanted to go were taken to Red Bluff. Five families for the East are still in the cars here. The American Railway Union has fed them at the hotels. A freight from the South was sidetracked today, and the shops are closed, and not a wheel turns in this division.

AT SACRAMENTO.

A Train From the San Joaquin Valley Abandoned.

SACRAMENTO, June 29.—All is quiet here in railroad circles tonight. A train arrived at 5 o'clock from the Shasta division, but stopped on the Yolo side of the river, as the main track on this side was obstructed by the tied-up overland express. At 7 o'clock a mixed train came into the city from the San Joaquin valley, but was abandoned by the crew at the foot of K street.

AT STOCKTON.

The River Steamers Carrying Large Passenger Lists.

STOCKTON, Cal., June 29.—Three passenger steamers left here this evening with large passenger lists, and every berth is taken on three steamers for tomorrow. Many travelers are coming here in wagons to take passage on the steamers. The only trains running from here are to Milton and Merced.

POSTAL MATTERS.

Prosecutions to Follow Interference With the Mails.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Acting Postmaster General Jones held a short conference this afternoon with Attorney General Olney at which movements of the strikers were discussed. It was decided to rigidly insist upon the carriage of all mails and to prosecute all who interfere with postal transportation.

CONFLICTING VIEWS.

Interested Parties on the Boycott.

STATEMENT BY THE BOYCOTTERS

They Will Fight to the End. George M. Pullman's Plausible Statement.

OAKLAND, June 29.—The following resolutions, adopted this morning at a meeting of the local branch of the American Railway Union, explain the attitude of that organization in the matter of the Pullman boycott:

"It being a custom among civilized people to publish and proclaim to the world at large and to their opponents particularly, the causes which lead up to and the reasons which actuate them in adopting a line of action which, in a measure, disturbs the usual order of affairs, Local Union No. 19 of the American Railway Union hereby recites and declares that the causes and reasons which led up to this strike are as follows:

"'The employes of the Pullman company, being members of the A.R.U. and having made complaints to the general union of unjust and oppressive treatment, which complaint after due investigation having been found to be well grounded, the said A.R.U., through a committee, having deemed that the Pullman company should arbitrate the differences existing between it and its employes, and said Pullman company having refused utterly to entertain any proposition looking to a settlement of said differences, and denying that any differences exist, we declare a boycott upon the Pullman company, which has declined to arbitrate the differences existing between it and its employes.

"'The Southern Pacific company in the plenitude of power and wisdom, have seen fit to espouse the cause of the Pullman company by refusing to run trains without Pullman cars. This action of the Southern Pacific, it seems to us, can be interpreted in only one way, namely, a declaration of war.'

"Now, therefore, while we fully realize the magnitude of the contest which has been forced upon us, we cannot refuse to pick up the gage of battle which has been thrown down to us; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That, having been forced, unjustly, into a fight which is not of our seeking, we hereby give notice to the Southern Pacific Company, and to the public at large, that we will maintain this fight to the uttermost limit of our ability; and be it

"Resolved, That while fighting for what we believe to be our just rights, we will endeavor to so conduct our fight as not to conflict with the rights of others, and in a manner that shall command the respect of all right-minded people; and be it further

"Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the general manager of the Southern Pacific Company, and that copies be furnished all the San Francisco and Oakland papers."

THE OTHER SIDE.

NEW YORK, June 29.—George M. Pullman, president of the Palace Car Company, has issued a comprehensive statement to the public with regard to the efforts of the company to keep its works open and give employment to its men. He says:

"At the commencement of the depression last year we were employing at Pullman 5816 men and paying out in wages there $305,000 a month. Negotiations with intending purchasers of railway equipment, that were then pending for new work, were stopped by them; orders already given by others were cancelled, and we were obliged to lay off a large number of men in every department, so that by November, 1893, there were only about 2000 men in all departments, or about one-third of the normal number.

"I realized the necessity for the most strenuous exertions to procure work immediately, without which there would be great embarrassment, not only to the employes and their families at Pullman, but also to those living in the immediate vicinity, including between 700 and 800 employes who had purchased homes and to whom employment was actually necessary. I discussed the matter thoroughly with the manager of the works. The result of this discussion was a revision in piece work prices, which, in the absence of any information to the contrary, I supposed to be acceptable to the men, under the circumstances.

"Under these conditions, and with lower prices on all materials, I personally undertook the work of building cars, and by making lower bids than other manufacturers I secured work enough gradually to increase our force from 2200 to about 4200, the number employed according to the pay roll in all capacities at Pullman.

"This result has not been accomplished merely by a reduction in wages, but the company has borne its full share by eliminating from its estimates the use of capital and machinery, and in many cases even going below that and taking work at considerable loss. During the night of May 10th a strike was decided on and, accordingly, next day about 2500 of our employes quit, leaving about 600 at work, of whom very few were skilled workmen.

"As it was found impracticable to put the shops in operation with a force thus diminished and disorganized, the next day those remaining were necessarily let out, and no work has since been done in the shops. The pay rolls at this time amounted to $7000 a day and were reduced to $6000 by the strike, so that during the period of a little more than six weeks which elapsed the employes who quit work have deprived themselves and their comrades of earnings amounting to more than $200,000.

A TIE-UP IN OREGON.

Southern and Northern Pacific Firemen Leave Their Cabs.

PORTLAND, Or., June 29. — Neither the Southern Pacific nor Northern Pacific took out trains tonight, the firemen leaving their cabs. The tie-up here is complete.

LABOR AND CAPITAL.

The Former Should be Protected as Well as the Latter.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN,—Your editorial in the issue of the 29th inst. is a manly exposition of the contest now going on between the Pullman Car Company and their employes. I quote from your article the following: "The merits of the controversy are therefore unknown and could only be made apparent by an investigation of the condition of the company's business"—an end that never will be attained except by force, and even then we are doubtful of its accomplishment, because the avarice that it would disclose and the methods employed to sustain it would embrace every crime in the calender. This is what the Pullman Company will never accede to.

The rapidity with which vast fortunes have been accumulated within the past twenty years by the aid of government and combines may well startle the people as they view with alarm the gathering shadow of national poverty that portends evil of a calamitous nature to all, rich and poor alike. The enormous interest that capital has exacted from labor in the past to maintain that monarchical splendor that it affects to imitate has been wrung from the storehouse of human misery, bleeding hearts and enslaved virtue; and to keep up this speedy way of living, regardless of the condition of the times, it is only necessary to tighten the screws of reduction on the unfortunate worker, and where his loaf was a whole one to reduce it a half, where the wife and the babies wore gingham they may now wear cotton, where patches may take the place of whole garments and the poor be reminded that they exist only by the suffrance of their wealthier neighbor.

This is the situation of labor and capital as they confront each other As the late Leland Stanford said in 1886, when interviewed upon this subject: "Capital will always go into the cheapest market for its labor." What I have often wondered at is, why governments attempt to regulate the rate of interest banks shall charge, and do not attempt to regulate the interest corporations and trusts are daily compelling the public to pay on all classes of produce they handle? Does not the Board of Trade say what we shall pay for our bread, for our raisins, for our meat, land, etc., etc.? Yet the public are powerless to prevent it.

Suppose the public were to insist on laws prohibiting any individual from saying what you or I shall pay for the necessaries of life—don't you believe the capitalistic press would as one man denounce the people as anarchists, and assert with vehemence that all such sentiments were the vaporings of addled brains? Yet the laborer has as much right to demand the government's interference in his behalf or against rich corporations and boards of trade, to prevent them from robbing him, as corporations have to government protection against employes, which they are now clamorous for.

The government is always called upon by the corporations whenever their greedy machinations are interfered with by their intended victims. Their case is presented with particularity and an obvious intention of misleading the public by all the subsidized papers that are owned or are willing to be owned throughout the country, and notwithstanding that labor is contending for the right to live in accord with the civilization of today, its side is prejudiced in favor of the corporation. If it were shown that the Pullman company had inflated its capital stock to double its rightful proportion, and had been paying interest on watered stock at the rate of twenty per cent per annum, which means forty per cent on actual value, and that to keep it up it was necessary to tighten the screws on labor, that the American dude or dudine might not be curtailed in their regular annual extravagance while abroad—if this can be proven by an examination of their accounts in the present case, then the same is true with regards to all other corporations under similar circumstances.

Capital never voluntarily advanced the national interests of labor; its purpose has been, and is now to keep it at the point of bare subsistence, for by doing so it destroys its pride and wrecks its ambition and has it wholly at its mercy. This policy is being advocated by some modern economists as the right solution of the labor problem, provided that labor can be always employed which will deprive it of the time for thinking. AN INFAMOUS POSITION.

The Selma Irrigator has to the extent of its ability disgraced the profession of journalism and the community in which it is published, by printing and indorsing a communication from one P. G. Farrar, in which Sheriff Scott is attacked for his action last fall in suppressing the bands of midnight marauders who were engaged in evicting and robbing Chinese laborers on the vineyards in this locality. The Irrigator apparently belongs to that (fortunately) limited class of newspapers which are conducted on the theory that it is legitimate for a public journal to take the wrong side of any question, to antagonize public interests and stultify its own record, if it can hope thereby to create prejudice against a member of an opposing political party. It is in keeping with the lowest and most contemptible political methods, but it can be said to the credit of the partisan press that many newspapers are too honorable to resort to such dirty tactics.

The Selma paper knows full well that Sheriff Scott deserves commendation instead of censure for having put a stop to the criminal methods adopted in this county last fall during the Chinese agitation by a class of men who were largely non-residents, and as experience proved, more interested in plundering the Chinese than they were in getting work on the vineyards. Had the sheriff permitted these depredations to go unchecked he would have been guilty of a shameful failure to perform his duty as the law prescribes it, and would have been properly subject to impeachment. He would also have merited and received the condemnation of all honorable and right-thinking citizens. But having performed his duty faithfully, as the law commanded him to do, this Selma paper—this alleged representative of the intelligence and best sentiment of the second town in the county—attempts to use the fact that he was faithful to his duty as an officer to create prejudice in the minds of those who can be swayed by such an argument.

The dishonesty of the Irrigator's attack upon the sheriff is proven by the fact that it very positively opposed these riotous demonstrations at the time they occurred, and if we remember correctly was bitter in its denunciation of the disgrace brought upon the town of Selma by the looting of Chinese stores shortly after the occurrences to which it refers. It was then in favor of law and order. It now censures those officers who attempted to sustain it.

The fact is that Jay Scott has done so much good service to Fresno county during the time that he has been in the sheriff's office that his political opponents feel called upon to discredit his work whether by fair means or foul. He came into office when crime was rampant in this county, when organized bands of thieves were continually carrying on their schemes of plunder and the crime of murder was a frequent accompaniment of burglary and highway robbery. No intelligent effort worthy of the name was being made to apprehend criminals, and as a consequence crime flourished. Within a few months he had succeeded in placing several notorious criminals safely on the road to San Quentin and under his aggressive administration of the sheriff's office life and property have become again as safe in Fresno county as in any locality on the Pacific coast. In so doing he has rendered the county a service for which every law abiding citizen owes him a debt of gratitude, for with a little less industry and little less perseverance on his part Fresno would still be pointed to as a hotbed for outlawry and unpunished crime.

As to the rights of white labor to preference over Chinese, there is no difference of opinion except among a very limited and a very selfish class of people. Jay Scott is as much in favor of white labor as any man in Fresno county, but that has nothing to do with his duty as an officer to protect property and preserve the peace. THE REPUBLICAN believes that it is the duty of every employer to hire white men exclusively when it is possible to obtain them, and that those who give the preference to Chinese should be made to feel the force of outraged public opinion in every reasonable and lawful way. But whenever mob violence is resorted to, then the sympathy and support of this paper ceases.

It is the paramount duty of every public journal at all times, and especially during the turbulent and dangerous conditions through which the country is passing, to uphold the law and to discourage violence thereto in any form in which it may appear. The newspaper which does not do this is an enemy to society and to the community which supports it. The influence of the press cannot be denied. Properly directed it is a powerful agency for right and for ultimate justice; misdirected it accomplishes incalculable harm. There never was a time in the history of the country when the united influence of the press was so much needed in support of the law and in opposition to all which is threatening its preservation.

THE REPUBLICAN regrets sincerely to see a single newspaper in Fresno county allying itself for any purpose with those who would trample the law under foot, and set up as a commendable virtue the sentiment which ignores its mandates.

GETTING THE WORST OF IT

The people at large are getting the worst of it in the argument about the amount of wages George M. Pullman shall pay the workmen in his car factory over in Illinois. They are getting very much the worst of it. Mr. Pullman is reputed to be many times a millionaire, and it is therefore not a matter of vital importance to him whether his business is temporarily suspended or not; the strikers have been getting good wages and are a prosperous class of people, and with the assistance given them by the organization through which their strike is operated, they can spend quite an enjoyable holiday pending the settlement of the dispute with their employer.

It is not so with tens of thousands of people all over the country whose business is being disastrously affected by the general closing down of transportation facilities. The California farmer whose fruit is rotting on the trees for want of means to carry it to market has no millions to console him for his loss, nor has he any association or oath-bound brotherhood which is bound to contribute to his assistance. His loss will be all his own, and in many instances he is poorly able to withstand it. The situation in many lines of industry is such that the people are poorly prepared to suffer the loss which is being needlessly and it would seem almost wantonly inflicted upon them. The business stagnation of the past year has brought very many lines of industry to the verge of dissolution, and it is probably not an exaggerated view of the situation to say that a very few days of the complete business paralysis which exists in certain lines will force thousands of people into bankruptcy.

And why? Because the Pullman Car Company will not pay its workmen the wages which they want. That is the sole cause of it all.

The only consolation which the plain every day American citizen can possibly get out of this condition of affairs is a knowledge of the fact that it is the forerunner of some sort of legislation which will prevent its repetition. Had the railroad companies anxiously desired to supply an object lesson showing that it is necessary for the government to assume an arbitrary control over their property under certain conditions, it could not have found a better opportunity nor have more fully taken advantage of it. Had organized labor also desired to illustrate the fact that it is in possession of and capable of using a Czar like power which has no place in a free government, it could not possibly have made a more full and convincing exemplification of its position.

The corporations and the labor unions have made the lesson complete. The government must intervene and protect the people from the tyranny of organized capital and organized labor.

THE contract which the government has with the railroads must be a decidedly jug-handled sort of document if it permits the company to carry the mail when it is convenient and agreeable to do so, and to refrain from carrying it under other circumstances. The railroad companies appear to have the deepest veneration for their contract with the Pullman company, but their contract with the government does not seem to be worrying them in the least. The government appears to be a kind of nonentity now-a-days anyway.

THERE is enough money going to waste every day on account of the railroad tie-up to pay Mr. Pullman's hired men good wages during a period of several years. It might not be a bad idea to pass 'round the hat and help Pullman and his people to tide over the hard times, without that cut in wages which extends clear into the vitals of the American people.

MORE people than ever before consider the Pullman car a luxury. The railroad people will doubtless admit that it comes high at present, but they still insist that we must have it.

GROVER and his congress have found a pretty good match in Pullman and his employes when it comes to stopping the wheels of industry.

Ladies whose systems are poisoned and whose blood is in an impure condition, due to menstrual irregularities, are peculiarly benefited by the wonderful tonic and blood cleansing properties of P. P. P.—Prickly Ash, Poke Root and Potassium.

SPRINGFIELD, MO., Aug. 14th, 1893.—I can speak in the highest terms of your medicine from my own personal knowledge. I was affected with heart disease, pleurisy and rheumatism for 35 years, was treated by the very best physicians and spent hundreds of dollars, tried every known remedy without finding relief. I have only taken one bottle of your P. P. P., and can cheerfully say it has done me more good than anything I have ever taken. I can recommend your medicine to all sufferers of the above diseases.

SERVICEABLE AND STYLISH.

586—FENWICK COAT. Sizes, 34, 36, 38 and 40 Inches Bust Measure.

Although very plain in effect as illustrated, this model is most practical for traveling, seaside and general wear. It is formed by the combination of the "Fenwick" coat and the "Gilbert" skirt, and embodies some of the most stylish features of the present day—the full gored skirt, and the newest style of blazer, which is tight fitting in the back and rounding away in front, disclosing a shirt waist. A waistcoat, basque or blouse waist can be substituted for the shirt waist. Covert cloth, homespun, tweed and serges are the popular materials for general wear, but for summer use, costumes of linen or cotton duck or canvass are exceedingly stylish and cool. Rows of stitching are used to finish the sleeves, collar and edges of the coat.

A special illustration and full directions about the pattern will be found on the envelope in which it is enclosed.

508—Gilbert Skirt. Sizes, medium and Large.

For any dress goods, light, medium or heavy in weight, this is an excellent model; graceful, of becoming fullness, and of equal length all around. It has gored fronts and side breadths, and a bias seam down the middle of the back, and the shape at the top makes it especially easy to fit. Line throughout, and put an interlining of not too stiff crinoline to any desired depth, between the lining and the outside. Finished with rows of stitching, it combines well with any of the tailor-made basques or coats.

A special illustration and full directions about the pattern will be found on the envelope in which it is enclosed.

THE WOOTTON MYSTERY

It Entirely Overshadows the Forgery Charge.

A LONG AND TEDIOUS TRIAL

Charles Rohloff Describes the Last Occasion on Which Wootton Was Seen

The taking of testimony in the case of the People vs. W. A. Sanders, for forgery, commenced in Judge Webb's court yesterday morning. The attendance was quite small, scarcely up to the average at an ordinary civil case.

The jury answered to their names as follows: S. S. Holden, Alex. Denn, J. H. Garrison, Eugene Anderson, C. D. Watkins, H. D. Colborn, L. Haas, L. B. Bates, P. Millett, E. Coombs, J. J. Luse, S. B. Bresee.

Charles Rohloff was the first witness called, and said he had known Sanders about four years. He saw Sanders at the Wootton ranch about February 1st, and on various occasions during three weeks before that time. He recollected that on the Tuesday before February 1st, during the afternoon, he was in the corral at the Wootton ranch when Professor Sanders drove up in a buckboard drawn by two mules. Sanders went up to the house and spoke to Wootton, but the witness could not catch the conversation. He did not see a tub or anything of that kind on the buckboard. Sanders wore a short striped coat. He walked up to the house with Sanders.

Mr. Short objected to these questions as irrelevant, but the court admitted them in evidence.

The witness continued that they took supper with Wootton and went to bed in the house at 9 o'clock. There were two beds and Sanders slept with witness. Did not see Sanders or Wootton when he rose at 4.30 next morning; made his breakfast and went to work.

Mr. Snow proceeded with the examination on this line, saying that he was laying the foundation of a case of conspiracy.

Witness went on to say that when he returned to lunch Sanders was writing. Wootton made the remark that there was a girl that he couldn't get away from, when Sanders said: "You're too old for that kind of business." The trio took supper together and retired as before. They took lunch together on the following day.

Mr. Short objected to a question as to whether the witness had heard Wootton speak of Knausch, and the objection was sustained on the ground of irrelevancy.

Mr. Wootton never left the place without telling witness he was going away, all the time he was there, continued the witness. His attention was attracted to the unusual circumstance of the door of the house being closed for some time during the afternoon. When witness was at work Sanders drove down to the gate of the wheat field with a man who looked like Wootton and pitched a number of bags of wheat on the ground. The man he supposed to be Wootton was sitting straight up on the seat with his arms straight down by his sides, and looking toward the road. After the wheat was thrown off Sanders took the lines and drove off. He threw the lines on the seat when he got down to open and shut the gate. That was the last he ever saw of Wootton.

After describing Wootton's age, appearance and habits, the witness said he had received a letter signed William Wootton after the latter had disappeared. The letter was produced and identified. The letter was postmarked San Fernando, February 4th, and the writing, like that on the letter, is in violet aniline, as is used in the ordinary ink pencils. The letter is not dated, and is as follows:

Charles Rohloff:—Dear Sir,—I wish you would look all around for my notes. They ought to be in a brown envelope. Mr. Knausch and Mr. Sanders has bought everything but 500 sacks of barley, that they would not take. I have promised to keep you and pay for work until October. Yours truly,

WILLIAM WOOTTON.

The handwriting and spelling in the letter are apparently those of a person of inferior education. The regular handwriting of Professor Sanders is flowing and the diction scholarly.

Mrs. Sanders and Miss Sanders about this time entered the court room and took seats on each side of the Professor. Mrs. Sanders was dressed in black, her daughter in white.

Mr. Short objected to the introduction of the letter as evidence in this case, and the court sustained the objection, but the documents were allowed to be filed as "people's proposed exhibit." The examination was then resumed.

The witness next saw Sanders on February 24th. When he left on February 1st he had a full heavy beard. When he returned he had partly cut off his beard. Sanders explained that he wanted his wife to see his face.

Mr. Short objected to this line of questioning, on the ground that his client is not being tried for any other offense than that of forgery, and could only be asked to answer to one indictment. Evidence such as would support another charge, of murder for instance, ought not to be admitted here

The witness was questioned about the $20,000 in gold so often referred to in the early developments of the Wootton mystery, and the connection of the hypothetical Knausch with the transfer of Wootton's property. Wootton said he wanted to be down at Los Angeles when the $25,000 check was paid so he could note it.

Mr. Snow produced a new, black valise, of common leather, and asked the witness if that resembled the one which Wootton had at the time of the transfer of the gold. Mr. Short objected that this was not the best evidence, but the objection was overruled. He also objected to a question as to whether any of Wootton's papers were missing after he disappeared, but the question was not allowed.

The witness continued: Sanders described Knausch as a tall big man, very much like Governor Markham, only that he had a big mustache covering his mouth.

The court here notified Mr. Snow that he would not be permitted to continue this line of questions any further, that is to say any reference to alleged conversations on the part of Sanders about Knausch. A recess was then taken.

On the resumption in the afternoon of the trial Mr. Short took the witness and cross-examined him closely on the surroundings of the Wootton house, referred to in his direct testimony, and particularly as to his last sight of Wootton, when the latter drove away with Sanders. He positively stated that Sanders held the lines, even while he was pitching off the wheat sacks. The mules were restless. Wootton had on his every day clothes, but his best hat.

The cross-examination lasted a full hour, but developed nothing of public interest. Professor Sanders sat with a faraway look in his eyes, occasionally scratching Pitman's phonetic characters on his note sheet. After making half a dozen word signs and phraseograms he would drop his pencil and relapse into a musing mood.

Mr. Short asked some questions about the story told by Sanders to witness about the negotiations between himself, Knausch and Wootton about the sale and transfer of the ranch. Then the witness was led to speak of the visit of Mark Walser to the ranch and the arrest of Professor Sanders. He gave the jury an idea, by signs, of the manner in which Sanders' long beard had been cut or trimmed when he returned on February 24th. The papers which Wootton put in his satchel, and which were afterwards missing, were English newspapers. Witness did not read them; had no particular interest in them. He read the American papers. When Wootton went away with Sanders he took with him an old hat, beside the new one he was wearing, and an overcoat. Sanders told him that on the way to Fowler he joked Wootton about the $20,000, and Wootton got uneasy and finally angry, saying they had better get back home. Wootton seemed to be afraid some one might hear the remark and rob them. It was about 4 o'clock when Wootton and Sanders started away together on February 1st.

A little more interest was imparted to the trial when Mr. Short questioned the witness about the circumstances preceding the arrest of Sanders. He said that the first person who came over to the Wootton ranch after the return of Sanders was Deputy Sheriff Peck. The next was an Examiner reporter named Griffes. Witness made a statement to the latter which was published in the Examiner, and read over to witness. Some of the report was not true. He meant some of the "stuff" about Sanders. It was incorrect. He did not tell the reporter or anybody else that Wootton held the mules when Sanders was pitching off the wheat. The next person who came to talk to him about the matter was Detective Lawson. The latter said he had come to inquire into the disappearance of Wootton, but did not make any suggestions to witness.

Mr. Short switched off to the subject of Wootton's contemplated visit to England. The witness said Wootton had spoken to him about the trip, saying he would start in March, take in the Midwinter Fair and go on to England in May or June. Wootton said he had a brother and two nieces in England. If Wootton had a relative in Alaska witness did not know of it.

A. F. Goble was next called to the stand. He is a ditch walker on the '76 canal, and met Sanders alone on the evening of February 1st. It was between 7 and 8 o'clock, one mile north of Reedley, both going south. He recognized Sanders and passed the time of day. Sanders said "Good evening." The hour was nearer 8 than 7. Witness was in Reedley by 8 o'clock. On February 4th he saw Sanders again about two miles west of Reedley, and asked him what his business was on that side of the river so late at night and at that season of the year. Sanders replied that he had business to transact with a man named Knausch, who was an engineer, and that it was intended to build a railroad from Reedley to the foothills, in which event his ranch would be planted out in orange groves. On this occasion Sanders was driving a mule team and buckboard; he was with his wife and daughter and driving quite slowly. It was probably about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, near Boyeson's place. There was a funeral at Boyeson's that day, and the meeting with Sanders occurred before Boyeson had started.

Prior Nance was the next witness. He lives near the Wootton ranch and farms about 200 acres of land half a mile from the west end of the trail from Wootton's. On February 1st, in the afternoon, he was ploughing a four acre piece in the canyon near Wootton's. It was quite possible for a team to be hitched up in the neighborhood without witness seeing it, as there are many trees on the trail leading to the Wootton ranch when the hill is struck. If any one was driving from Wootton's to Reedley they would have to pass the witness's house. He was not in the house during the afternoon; did not see any teams or fresh tracks of teams.

The witness's evidence was only of negative value and he soon left the stand in favor of his wife, Mrs. Prior Nance, who said she was at home all the afternoon of February 1st. She did not see any strangers drive by the house.

W. W. Holland, editor of the Reedley Exponent, was next called and testified that he knows Sanders and is familiar with his handwriting. He was shown a letter from Sanders which he pronounced to be genuine, a letter from Wootton on which he was unable to express an opinion, and a letter from himself to Wootton which he pronounced genuine. The letters are of no interest at this stage of the trial, and the matters testified to were not admitted.

The witness was not cross-examined, and the court adjourned till 9.30 a.m. today.

So far nothing directly bearing on the alleged forgery has been brought out, the object of the prosecution being to show the existence of a conspiracy, and that the forged draft (which bears date February 5th) is part of this conspiracy, of which the death of Wootton was the sequel.

From appearances the trial will last at least a week.

PINE RIDGE ITEMS.

News Concerning the Mills There.

A BOATING PARTY'S EXPERIENCE

Many Trays Being Manufactured. An Accident at Cumming's Mills.

Business up here this season is not quite so brisk as in former years, but still there is a good deal of timber being cut. Cummings' mill is cutting lumber and making trays and boxes. Smyth & McCardle's mill is not running this summer. Littlefield, the only man on Pine Ridge who uses water power, does a little sawing occasionally. Demorris & Bancroft are sawing trays and lumber, as also are Sage & Humphreys. Lehman's mill near Markwood meadow is cutting lumber, and last, but not least by any means, is the flume company's mill at the dam on Stephenson creek, which probably cuts as much lumber in a day as all the other mills on the mountain, although it has not been in operation very long.

The raisin tray business has come to be one of the principal industries up here, all the mills except one have a box factory in connection, that of the flume company, however, being situated at Clovis. And then there are many shake-makers, who have large quantities of tray shakes on hand, probably the ones that are engaged in this most extensively being W. O. Ockenden, Bert Nolan and S. L. Hogue. Mr. Ockenden has a small engine with which he cuts cleats, hearts and crooked bolts of his shake lumber. Every one is saying that there are many more trays, both sawed and split, being manufactured up here this season than there will be any sale for.

George Barker is having his timber cut at Sage & Humphreys and is making a lumber yard at Ockenden's.

Only a few tourists have come up yet from the plains. J. Whittaker, of the White Front store in Fresno, has been in the mountains for a week or so, rusticating and recuperating himself from his tedious labors in the store. He is much pleased with Pine Ridge and talks o. bringing his family up later in the season.

Mr. Boust and family and Miss Bessie Hughes of Malaga have spent a couple of weeks among the pineries.

The weather has been most too cool and unpleasant until the last two weeks for pleasure seekers. Quite a number are expected, however, after the Fourth.

John Davis is clerking for Charles Ockenden this summer.

Travelers to the mountains miss the cordial greeting of the late Si Kenyon at Kenyon station.

Those having fruit trees up here will have very little fruit this year as the late frosts killed it. There are many more vegetables being raised, however, than usual. Two Chinamen have a large garden just above Downie's, but the late frosts killed much of their early planting. It is still early spring up here, onions, lettuce and radishes are only just getting large enough to use, while strawberries are not yet ripe.

Much has been said of the many sheep that died on Pine Ridge this spring. Probably the exact number that was lost will never be known except by the sheep owners themselves, and they are not inclined to be talkative on the subject. The traveler along the road is still very frequently greeted by an unpleasant odor arising from the decaying carcasses. Had those that perished in the first snow storm been all it would not have been so bad, but many that did not die then were so thoroughly chilled that they kept dying for some weeks afterward. The bands that were in good condition did not suffer much loss, only those that were weak and had been driven hard without much to eat as they came across the plains and up the mountain.

All of the mills up here haul logs on trucks except Cummings'. At this mill they are hauled on skidways, the skids being placed parallel like crossties on a railroad, and about six feet apart. These are then greased and sixteen logs, large or small, and averaging sixteen feet in length, coupled together one behind the other, constitute an average load for twelve oxen. One team makes two trips a day, and hauls from 8,000 to 14,000 feet at a load. The roadway is down grade. It is worth anyone's while to see a train of logs hauled in this way.

The flume company is having large quantities of wood cut and corded by the flume, ready to float down to the plains. To one used to living in Fresno, where a little wood costs a whole lot, the sight of the great quantity of fuel lying around up here fills one with inexpressible longing.

Yesterday a fly wheel on the box factory engine at Cummings' mill broke, and one of the pieces struck Engineer Warner on the leg above the knee, painfully injuring him, and will probably lay him up for several weeks.

William Helm came to the mountains today with a drove of horses.

Joe Bretz is not making shingles this summer, he having enough stock on hand to supply the trade for the coming season. He has moved his family up from Toll House, however, and is running a dairy on a small scale.

The boys up here, the same as everywhere, are mischievous, and like to play pranks on one another. Last Sunday morning J. W. Walker, the talented bookkeeper at Cummings' mill; "Buff" Merrill, the handsome and athletic screw turner at the same place, accompanied by Miss Daisy Roundtree of Santa Cruz, and Miss Bessie Hughes of Malaga, left Cummings' mill and went on the stage over to the dam at the head of the flume for the purpose of taking a boat ride down the flume back to the mill from whence they started.

This select party of four tried to make believe that they were going Toll House and thus deceive the mill boys as to their true destination. But because a "boy" works in a mill in the mountains and wears blue overalls it is no sign that he is not "up to snuff." There is a telephone station near Cummings' mill, and it is an easy matter to get communication with the head of the flume. It has not been made public how word reached the head of the flume that this party had left Cummings' for a Sunday afternoon boatride down this artificial waterway, which is picturesque in the extreme. But one thing is certain—word reached there all right.

When the party arrived at the dam, everything was as "still as a mouse." The mill hands, dressed in their holiday attire, sat around on the lumber piles watching "Jimmie" and "Buff" make their boat, while the two young ladies occasionally lent a helping hand. The boat was completed and everything was in readiness before sundown for the few mile trip down the flume. The party of four then bade the onlookers good bye and weighing anchor they set sail for a lower attitude. What could be more delightful? The smooth gliding of the boat down the flume, now close to the ground, now high in the air, now skimming along the brink of some high precipice, like an air ship, or darting in and out among the huge sugar pine and fir.

But, alas! that ship never returned. Her crew did, however; they returned to Cummings' mill late, late at night, a shipwrecked and shivering crowd like stranded mariners, cast ashore on some lonely isle and compelled to abandon their ship and wander hither and thither before finding a place of rest—so these young people, stranded midway on their journey, were compelled to make the remainder of the trip as best they could. Not long after the boat left the dam it struck some obstruction in the bottom of the flume, supposed to have been put there purposely by some mischievous person, and the occupants received a thorough wetting. The sun was going down, the water was icy cold and the air was frosty. But the crew kept up courage and would not let a little water dampen their ardor. But a little water did dampen their ardor before they reached the mill—rather, the want of a little more water dampened their ardor, for in some mysterious (?) manner the gate of the flume was closed, shutting off the supply.

The boat soon began to touch the sides and bottom of the flume and refused to longer float with its crew of four. The two boys jumped out and the boat thus lightened again moved on, but its speed became slower and slower and finally it refused to move. The boys then hitched themselves to the boat and assisted the diminishing supply of water by pulling, while the young ladies acted as drivers, calling out, "Get up 'Buff;' get up Jim."

This sort of procedure soon grew monotonous (for the boys) and they were discussing whether or not to abandon the boat, when the girls entreated them in the language of Captain Lawrence: "Boys, whatever you do, don't give up the ship." But their entreaties were in vain and the girls were told to clamber out. It was either that or remain shivering in the stranded boat all night and so they chose the former. It was now long after dark and there was no moon and no road, the only alternative being to walk through the rough woods or along a narrow plank high up on the flume. Just which course they pursued has been kept quiet among themselves.

A number of the boys assembled by the flume to welcome the party back to camp, but after waiting there long after dark it became a case of forced "freeze-out" with them and they sought a more congenial climate between their blankets. The excursionists returned some time that night, but they were not very talkative concerning what they were inclined to consider a serious joke that had been played on them. "Jimmie" takes the fun good-naturedly poked at him by the boys; but don't mention boatride to "Buff." Miss Bessie started for the plains next day to thaw out, and Miss Daisy tries to make believe that it was a "daisy" trip. The mill boys now sing:

"They made a boat in which to float
From Stephenson's to Cummings';
The water stopped, the boat it dropped"

But just here "Buff" gets on his ear and makes a scatterment among the musicians worse than a lot of officers do among a band of Chinamen when they come unawares upon a game of "tan."

TOURIST.

Pine Ridge, June 28, 1894.

A POPULIST'S DREAM.

J. L. Gilbert Scores Protection and Finds His Utopia.

There were nearly as many women and children as men at a well attended meeting of the Populist central club at Spinney hall last night. In the absence of Chairman Knobloch C. G. Sayle presided, with George St. Louis as secretary. The chief speaker of the evening was J. L. Gilbert.

He said that when the founders of this country came over here and settled down to discuss political questions, it soon developed that they represented two distinct ideas. There was one element which believed in government of the people, by the people, for the people; in the freedom and equal rights for all men; in the principles that are linked with Thomas Jefferson. There was the other element which came across the water with the time honored ideas of old monarchies. They believed in a small, privileged class, living in idleness, and a large class to serve them. That second privileged element was headed by Mr. Hamilton, and to this day whenever any man or set of men has desired special privileges to bankers, to manufacturers or to any other class of favored citizens, those people have always quoted Mr. Hamilton. This class controls the United States of America today.

The speaker passed in review the history of the great party which for thirty years has stood out for protection. He contended that in those thirty years American labor had been enslaved; its toilers turned into the streets, poorly clad, and unsheltered. A prominent local politician had assured him that the People's Party had votes enough to carry the county, but claimed that they wouldn't stick. He himself claimed that if the county and the country are to be saved, it is not the Republican party, but the People's Party that will do it.

He drew a most gloomy picture of prevailing conditions, and at the conclusion of an address which lasted fully an hour and a half, presented a contrastingly rose-hued picture of the condition of the country on the arrival of the Populists at the goal of their ambition—government control of railroads and telegraphs, and the establishment of the initiative and referendum.

Mr. Gilbert's speech was frequently interrupted by applause, and there was no sign of weariness in the audience when he had concluded.

The Hughes Hotel.

D. J. Canty yesterday assigned his lease of the Hughes hotel to H. Hart. Mr. Hart thus becomes lessee, and Thomas E. Hughes has been induced to take the management of the hotel. The Hughes was always at its best under the management of the gentleman whose name this popular hostelry bears, and it is a safe prediction to say that it will be brought up to the old standard. Mr. Hart is an enterprising gentleman, and the fact that he is interested in the management of the hotel is a sufficient guarantee that those who patronize it will receive entire satisfaction.

F. A. Foin has had practical experience in his business since 1849, and if you have had trouble in getting good work done in tinning and plumbing, give him a call. All work warranted first class, and reasonable charge. F. A. Foin & Son, Fresno street, below the old postoffice.

BICYCLES WITHOUT LIGHTS

A Dangerous Practice That Must be Stopped.

The police are having great trouble just now with reckless men who skim along the highways of the city after dark on bicycles unprovided with a headlight.

Several citizens have been knocked down and more or less injured in this way, for it seems to be part of the enjoyment on the part of the bicyclists to flash round a corner at high speed and scare persons who are crossing the principal streets. The fact that many of the streets are virtually unlighted after 9 o'clock adds greatly to the security of the cyclists in this senseless sport, and of course the danger of pedestrians is in exact proportion.

The police have endeavored to bring some of the offenders to book, but they have escaped in every case but one by simply tearing off at full speed. On Thursday night, however, Officer Herrington halted one of the giddy rushers on J street, near Fresno, and scared him nearly to death. The first impression of the young man was that it was a genuine case of hold-up, and he knelt down on the street and begged for mercy at the hands of the supposed footpad, after several yells that were heard for three blocks. When the youth found that he had an officer to deal with he entreated, even more piteously than before to be allowed to go "to home and mother," promising never to offend again. He had to appear before Recorder Clark yesterday, and was fined $5.

Last evening while the same officer was standing on Fresno street, near J, another bicycle came along in the dark without a headlight, noiseless and swift as a bolt from a bow. The officer called on him to stop, but the rider, who is a business man well known in town, instead of complying made a half turn and went off down a side street, passing within a yard of the officer. Herrington says if this sort of thing is to go on the police may be instructed to bring offenders to a halt with a pistol shot.

A PLEASANT PARTY

Given Last Evening by Miss Louise Wright.

A coterie of young people were entertained last evening by Miss Louise Wright at her home on I street. The occasion was Miss Wright's "at home" evening and she entertained handsomely. Among the friends present were Misses Fannie, Mary and Agnes Helm, Carrie Stevens, Mary Maupin, Pollie Tupper and Messrs. E. A. Walrond, Dr. Maupin, Dr. Miller, Thomas Lynch, Gene Mullen, Montague Parsons and J. M. McClure.

Miss Wright has but recently returned from San Francisco, where she has been receiving vocal instruction from eminent teachers. She possesses a remarkably sympathetic voice, which cultivation has greatly improved. Her Friday evenings "at home" will be a source of genuine enjoyment to her many friends during her stay in Fresno. Miss Wright will return to her studies in August.

A Special Delivery.

Arrangements have been completed whereby THE REPUBLICAN will be served to subscribers as far south as Kingsburg and north to Madera by special delivery. A special carrier will deliver THE REPUBLICAN to subscribers south of here. Subscribers north will be served by a carrier on the quarter deck of a record breaking bicycle. What trains may be sent out will, of course, also be taken advantage of. This service will be continued till the tie-up is ended. The people must have THE REPUBLICAN, the only morning newspaper in the valley.

A Scrupulous Censor.

When Rome was under the papal power, a play was once submitted to the prelate charged with the revision of manuscripts for the press. In the first scene an actor is represented as sitting at a table and calling, "Waiter, a beefsteak." The scrupulous censor wrote in the margin: "Note—When the piece is played during Lent, the actor, instead of calling for a beefsteak, will order an omelet."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Slavonians at War.

Ben and Toney Lopezich were before Recorder Clark yesterday on a charge of disturbing the peace, preferred by Peter Barisich. Nick Marisich also swore to a complaint charging Ben Lopezich with assault with a deadly weapon. The first mentioned cases will be tried this afternoon at 2 o'clock; the assault case next Monday afternoon. Later Ben Lopezich filed a complaint in Justice Crichton's court charging Marisich with embezzling $45 from him. All the trouble arose over the partnership between Marisich and Lopezich in the White Grotto restaurant.

LOCAL TRAINS STILL RUNNING

The Humorous Side of the Situation—Fresnoans Stranded At the Bay.

The predictions made Thursday by the railroad officials here that the 12.45 p.m. train would make its run as usual was verified yesterday. A few courageous Fresnoans boarded the train expecting to reach San Francisco, but they did not get any further than Lathrop. Those bound for stations between here and Lathrop reached their destinations. The train that left at the same time the day before was also stranded at Lathrop.

The Porterville train also left on time yesterday. This train and the local to Lathrop will continue their runs. The Fresno division, in fact, appears to be the only one on the line that is operating passenger trains. It is stated that some of the passengers bound for the bay took teams from Lathrop to Stockton, whence they will make the trip to San Francisco by boat.

The strike has become general, even the freight traffic being affected. The men in the shops at Bakersfield "walked out" yesterday. It was rumored that the men in the railroad shop here had also gone out, but it was learned from one of them that they had merely been laid off till further orders. The railroad company stopped receiving freight at 10 o'clock yesterday morning and will receive none until the tie-up has ended.

There is no freight to speak of on the tracks here, nearly all of it having been moved. All the freight trains were running as usual on this division yesterday. There was a special to Collis and return, the regular to Goshen and return, and the regular to Porterville and return. Besides these No. 27, freight, returned from Lathrop, bringing a few passengers from the bay. The fruit men in this locality are not suffering any damage from the tie-up, but will, of course, if it should last much longer. The fruit growers of the Sacramento and Santa Clara valleys, however, are said to be suffering great loss as the fruit is earlier there.

Of course the tie-up has its humorous as well as its serious side. General Muller, who is stranded at San Francisco and is frantic to get back home, telegraphed to Jim Northcraft yesterday that he would go to Stockton and drive down the valley. Colonel Wright, who remembers the General's sarcastic offer of a pet cow to ride at the Stockton encampment, wired the General that he would send the same cow up to Stockton for the General's use in his trip homeward.

Colonel Ferguson is penned in at Lathrop, and the last heard of him was that he was leaning over the dry goods counter philosophizing on the strange circumstance that a free pass doesn't seem to be more effective in taking a man to his destination than does a regular ticket.

There is a horrible probability that Fresno's beer supply will be entirely cut off. There is some talk of sending a beer special down from San Francisco, but Superintendent Frazier shakes his head in a very discouraging manner. It is reported that a car of beer is stranded somewhere between Selma and Kingsburg. The Hermann's Sons have decided to go down the road in a body and bring the car to Fresno by man power. Beer will be an absolute necessity for their celebration on the Fourth.

The Expositor-Southern Pacific excursionists to the Midwinter Fair are receiving a good deal of sympathy, though much of it isn't very genuine. They went to the bay provided with money enough to see them through the week they intended spending there. Many of them were extravagant and "blew in" their wads the first few days, knowing they could get more money by writing for it. They wrote for it, of course, but Uncle Sam's mail service appears to be as liable to the vicissitudes of fortune as other interests depending upon the railroad. No doubt not a few of the 300 excursionists who left Fresno last Saturday have been reduced by this time to borrow money from friends and acquaintances, or to husband their limited resources by dining at some 15-cent beanery.

The overland excursion to Monterey has received a boom in consequence of the strike. All who wish to go to Monterey on the first of July to attend the breaking of ground on the Monterey & Fresno railroad, which ceremony will take place on the Fourth, should communicate either with Fulton G. Berry or Thomas E. Hughes. Commodore Berry will navigate on an octocycle especially manufactured for him.

At the postoffice business is at a standstill, no mail having been received since Wednesday evening. Some mail was sent up the road yesterday and the day before, but no one knows how far it went. The railroad company is being severely criticised for failing to convey mail matter.

There are two tourist cars detained here, some of whose passengers are reported to be in a condition that requires the attention of the benevolent. A lady, with two children, who had spent all her money, would have fared badly had not Superintendent Frazier kindly looked after her needs.

It was reported here yesterday that Attorney General Olney had ordered United States Marshal Covarrubias of Los Angeles to impress fifty men into his service for the purpose of moving the United States mails from that point.

A Von Bulow Rehearsal.

When in Munich some years ago directing the Wagner operas, a woman of society asked the late Hans von Bulow one evening to be allowed to attend the rehearsal of the orchestra on the following day. Bulow replied that it would give him great pleasure to have her present later in the week, when the orchestra had played oftener. However, on the following day Bulow caught sight of her in the theater as he took his baton in hand. He stopped the music, held a hurried conversation with one of the members of the orchestra, and then ascended to his place again. He flourished his baton, and one instrument began to sound. He continued to beat the air, and the instrument continued to play—only three different notes. For five minutes this was kept up, the other musicians remaining silent. The poor lady became half crazy in the course of time, and in disgust at Bulow and Wagner left the room. The rehearsal was then continued.—San Francisco Argonaut.

For Sleeplessness.

If persons troubled with sleeplessness would keep at hand a bottle of the following mixture and use it as a sponge bath, they would find the greatest relief: Into 8 ounces of alcohol put 2 of ammonia and 2 of camphor. Shake thoroughly, and when well mixed add 4 ounces of sea salt and enough hot water to fill a quart bottle. To apply it pour a little of the liquid in a shallow dish, moisten the whole body a little at a time by dipping a small sponge in it. Rub on only a very little, then finish with a vigorous rubbing with a coarse crash towel. Get into bed, and you will promptly fall asleep.—New York Recorder.

THE MODERN WAY OF MOVING.

Some of Its Features as Noted by a Suburbanite Just Moved Into Town.

"We cannot forget," said the man who moved from the suburbs, "the vans we moved in nor the men who moved us. The whole household was active early that morning waiting for the vans. The main road by which they would approach ran parallel to the street in which we lived and in plain sight. Soon after 7 o'clock we saw them coming, three of them, each drawn by four horses, and all well closed up, a decidedly orderly and business looking procession. They swung around through a cross street and down our street and halted near the house at 7:10. They had told us at the office that the vans would be there at 7 o'clock. Inasmuch as they had had 12 miles to come and it had rained the night before 7:10 didn't seem like a half bad bluff at it.

"A man came down and located the house, and then the two head vans came and backed up to the walk in front. At one side of the house there was a driveway which ran back past the rear of the house, with a loop there around a little oval grass plat. There was none too much room in this driveway, which was not designed for four horse teams, but when the rear van came down the driver swung his leaders and came in at it with the large confidence of a man who has a good team and knows how to handle it. He rounded the oval and halted with his team headed toward the street and the rear end of the van on a line with the rear of the house. When the vans were all in position, the horses were blanketed, and then the men were ready.

"There were six men altogether, and they were all powerful, ablebodied men. The house was a 2½ story Queen Anne. The men stripped it in two hours and without any fuss or commotion whatever. At 9:20 the last padlock snapped on the last van door, and the drivers mounted to their seats and hauled out into the road again, once more in line. Then all hands settled down in their seats, and everything was ready for the start. The great arks were very heavy now, and it was no light work to move them. There was a little picturesque plunging at the start, but they were good teams, every one, and they soon had the vans in motion, and after that they walked off with them as though they were shoeboxes on wheels. A few moments later we saw them once more out on the main road, moving now toward the city.

"Four hours later we caught sight of them again. We were then on the train bound for the city and approaching near it. We saw the vans on a road at some little distance from the railroad. They were as well closed up as a wagon train would be under escort in an enemy's country and moving forward.

"Not very long afterward we stood on the steps in the land of brick and mortar and saw the procession, still well closed up, appear around the corner. They came up at a trot. It took a little more time to unload than to load, but not much. Soon we heard the last padlock snap again, this time on the last of the empty vans. Once more the procession lined up, moved off and disappeared.

"And left us to settle. It is something of a job to settle, as those who have tried it know, but if anything could make that work seem lighter it would be the exhilaration of moving in the modern way."—New York Sun.

THE OLD SONGS.

Whatever the Vogue of a Style In Music They Never Lose Favor.

It was a hotel parlor; a brilliant pianist had just rendered one of Wagner's most difficult pieces, and a murmur of well bred applause followed. Then very softly and tenderly, like a sweetly tremulous old voice reciting pathetic memories, the ivory keys sent the plaintive melody of "Auld Lang Syne" sighing through the room. The idle chatter ceased, every mind was busy with bitter sweet memories, and the air was full of the scent of vanished clover, the warm fragrance of newly tossed hay, the echo of babbling brooks. The simple tune knocked at the door of every heart, and the ghosts of dead days came trooping forth in answer.

A stout dame on the musician's left looked away through the open window, beyond the moon flooded hills, and a sigh scintillated the jet upon her ample bosom. She had gone back to a summer eve years ago and was dressed in a faded pink calico and flapping sunbonnet again. Her bare toes sank deep in the yellow dust of the country road as she drove the cows home through the lonely, cool shadows. John Edward, freckled faced and honest eyed, came sheepishly out of the woods and joined her, and the cows were late that night, for what has young love to do with time?

A dignified old gentleman beside her blew his nose and incidentally wiped his eyes. He was thinking of the morning when he went out to seek his fortune and turned under the windy orchard trees to a wave of last farewell to a mother, who stood in the door with her check apron to her eyes. He had whistled "Auld Lang Syne" to keep back the rising sobs as he trudged upon his way.

Not a word was spoken when the last memory haunted note died away in silence, but every one had paid the tribute of a tear to "Auld Lang Syne."

An almost forgotten poet, Robert Hinckly Messinger, quaintly wishes for old wood to burn, old books to read and old friends to talk with in an ideal old age, and he might also have added old tunes to be played in the long twilights in which he dozed and dreamed in an easy chair. It is a fact that none of the popular songs of late years survives a mayfly existence. They catch the lip, but do not hold the heart, and are written to cater to the popular fancy, unlike the old tunes which are birth marked with the joys and woes of the human race.

Music hall melodies may come and go and be forgotten, but as long as a sprig of heather blossoms on Scottish moors "Highland Mary" will bring tears to Scottish eyes, and the cruelty of "Barbara Allen" will go down through all the ages while lads go courting and lasses are capricious. Every sailor leaves a "Black Eyed Susan" in port behind him, and there is a chord in every bosom set to the wanderer's immortal cry, "Home, Sweet Home." "Annie Laurie" will live as long as the English language. Neither a Handel nor a Beethoven composed the "Marseillaise," yet it became the battlecry of a nation. It is not to the music of the symphony societies that the dying turn, but to "Rock of Ages."

Many of Gilbert & Sullivan's catchy melodies are borrowed from old ballads, and they have even "Mother Goose" to thank for some of their success.

Strauss may set the feet to dancing, Wagner tickle the brain and Mozart please the ear, but nothing can touch the heart like the old tunes.—Philadelphia Press.

Putting Wolves to Death by Torture.

One use of the whalebone to which the Eskimos put it, and one case of which came under my personal observation, I must not allow to pass unnoticed. Whenever wolves have been unusually predatory, have destroyed a favorite dog or an or dug up a cache of reindeer meat just when it was needed, or in any way have aroused the ire of the Innuit hunter, he takes a strip of whalebone about the size of those used in corsets, wraps it up into a compact helical mass like a watch spring, having previously sharpened both ends, then ties it together with reindeer sinew and plasters it with a compound of blood and grease, which is allowed to freeze and forms a binding cement sufficiently strong to hold the sinew spring at every second or third turn. This, with a lot of similar looking baits of meat and blubber, is scattered over the snow or ground, and the hungry wolf devours it along with the others, and when it is thawed out by the warmth of his stomach it elongates and has the well known effect of whalebone on the system, but having the military advantage of interior lines its effects are more rapid, killing the poor wolf, with the most horrible agonies, in a couple of days.—From an Interview With Eugene Melville, U. S. N.

A Breakfast, 1738.

Mr. Weddell, in his curious "Voyage Up the Thames," from Somerset Stairs to Windsor, in a sailing barge or boat, in March, 1738, notes that ale was then still served for breakfast. Having started about 4 o'clock one afternoon, the next morning:—

We arrived safe at Staines about Ten in the Forenoon, and went to a House of Entertainment, where everything appeared in a very good Taste; Breakfast was brought, consisting of Chocolate, Coffee, Ham, Cheese, Ale and Wine. I mention the Particulars, because it was the first time I remember seeing things brought in this manner, and is what I approve of, since in a Company of six Men, it is natural to expect at least one or two who can breakfast on Beef and Ale. Tho' I think Supper is the only one among us of that Stamp. P. 70.

Supposing a Case.

Manager—This new play, I expect, will be a big success. In the first act you appear as a beggarly clerk in a dry goods establishment, kicked about by your employers and the floorwalker and contemned by the customers. Then three years elapse between the first and second acts and——

Actor—You wouldn't mind paying my salary in advance for those three years? I'm awfully short.

Manager—I ought to have said 'are supposed to elapse.' You can suppose you got your three years' salary in advance.—Boston Transcript.
